UNCLE SAM'S GUNS.

The biggest cannon ever made in the United States was tested successfully on the 21st of March at the naval proving station at India Head, twenty-two miles from Washington, as the New York World. The trial was witnessed by Vice-President Stevenson, Secretary Herbert, Assistant Secretary McAdoo, Secretary Morton, more than 100 members of Congress, attaches of all the foreign legations, and other people, distinguished and undistinguished. A chunk of metal four feet long, as big around as a man's thigh and weighing more than half a ton, was hurled from a cannon forty feet long, at the rate of 2,000 feet a second, and was buried forty feet deep in a sand hill.

The projectile was driven by the explosive force of more than 4,000 pounds of powder. The cannon from which it was fired weighs over sixty tons. At a range of 200 yards it would pierce a steel plate twenty-six inches thick, and at one mile it would smash through the plates of the strongest armored vessel afloat. The horizontal range of this great gun is five miles. Elevated it will send one of its projectiles thirteen miles. If placed on the battery it could drop a ball into the Harlem. The old fashioned twenty-four pounders with which our forefathers and the British battered each other in 1776 and 1812 look like toy guns beside it.

This cannon is one of twelve provided for by an Act of Congress several years ago. All are made of hammered steel and were forged by the Bethlehem, Pa., Iron Works. They were then "assembled," as the technical phrase goes, at the Washington Navy Yard. This means that the parts were put together and they were jacketed there. The one tested today was completed two weeks ago. The other eleven will be ready soon. They are intended for the three battleships, Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon. Four will be on each ship, two in each turret.

The powder is made especially for this gun and its mates at the Dupont Powder Factory at Wilmington, Del. It does not look like powder at all. It looks like inch cubes of chocolate candy. The cubes are put up in large packages about the size of nail kegs. It takes four of these bags to make a meal for the cannon, and it takes two stout men to thrust them into the breech of the gun. The exact weight of the projectile is 1,100 pounds.

THE FEELING OVER THE VETO.

According to the reports from Washington, the Republicans are elated over the President's veto of the Seigniorage bill. This is to be expected, as every Republican east of the Missouri river, except Quay of Pennsylvania—and it is said he would have been no exception if his vote would have prevented its passage—voted against the bill. The Democrats from the West and South, who voted for the bill, are dissatisfied with the veto. Nearly all of them represent farming and mining States, and their constituents are not only in favor of coining the silver bullion owned by the Government, but all the bullion that may be offered for coinage at the mints. They contend that no country ever had too much gold and silver coins, and that the United States at the present time has not enough for the requirements of business.

But how farcical it is for Nevada Republicans to pretend to favor free coinage when the representatives of the party in Congress are opposed to it, and vote against every measure that is calculated to bring it about. Think of it, voters of Nevada! Nineteenth of the Republicans in Congress voting against free coinage and rejoicing over the veto of a bill to add $55,000,000 to the volume of money in circulation, and the leaders of the Republican party in Nevada telling the dear people that the party is in favor of free coinage. The men who advocate the success of such a party must want office very bad indeed, and think they can get it by fooling the people.—Journal.
